Why He Spoke Harshly. RICHMOND, VA., December 11, 1894.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

I note in your report of the case of Miss Bond vs. Mrs. Shea, in the Police Court of yesterday, published in the Dispatch of this morning, that it not only would seem to indicate, but almost asserts, that my reply to Mr. Ivey therein referred to, was made for the sole reason that he had referred to the action of Mrs. Shea as atrocious, when, in fact, this was not the reason or cause, at all, but my reply to him was provoked by the personal attack of Mr. Ivey upon my lady client, in which he said she had the face of a liar, a thief, an itrocious character, and a hellish flend, besides other epithetr alike abusive and foreign to the point at issue. (Special.)-On Thursday of this week, at Grace Episcopal church, Bishop Randolph will ordain to Deacon's Orders Mr. Frank Ridout, the youthful brother of the rector of the church, and at the same time will unveil the beautiful memorial window just erected in memory of the late Dr. Churchill J. Gibson, for over fifty years the beloved rector of the church. This window, as has been already stated in this correspondence occupies or fills almost the entire portion of the recess in rear of the altar, and is in full view of the entire congregation. The memorial has been erected by the entire congregation, and fills the position designed for it, and so designated before the death of Dr. Gibson. The memorial represents the scene of "The Ascension," with appropriate inscriptions. On either side of the chancel are memorial windows erected by Dr. Gibson in memory of his two children—a daughter and a son—who passed to the other world be-fore him.

When the memorial to the sainted min fster is unveiled Bishop Randolph will deliver an appropriate address.

Dark loose sales to-day were light, as predicted, on account of the bad condition of country roads. Amount sold, 33.620 pounds, with $4c. highest price. Prices ranged rather higher than last week, and were very satisfactory.

Bright loose sales were quite full, and comprised some very good wrappers, which frequently sold up in the fifties. All grades are reported stronger, and warehouse men say that to-day's sales were some of the most satisfactory they have had this season.

Private trading was rather light, and scattering. No grade was in particular demand.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET.

CHICAGO ILL., December II.—Holders of wheat found reason for rejoicing in the action of that cereal to-day. From the opening until the close prices prosed slowly but surely upward, and although the gain was not a great one, still it was made in the face of difficulties. The crowd was fixed for a break at the start, but an unexpected demand sprang up, with Brosseau & Co. leading in the buying. May wheat opened at from 59 to 59%c., advanced to 59%c., and closed at 59%c., with year of the start of the common start was steady and without essential change as to prices.

There was a slow trade in corn, prices being confined within the narrow range of %c. all day. May opened at 49%c., soid between that and 50c., and closed at 49%c.—a shade over yesterday. Cash corn was steady.

A moderate advance was made in oats. Cash oats were a shade firmer.

Provisions—For a short while after the start to-day it looked somewhat dubious for product, the weakness in live hogs giving a feeling of depression to the trade. The turn in wheat, however, worked an improvement in provisions, and a recovery took place which was kept well in hand until the close, January pork was unchanged from yesterday at the end of the session, January lard 2½c, higher, and January ribs 5c. higher.
